

They Came on Ships Plotting a Course to Publishing Your Family History

By David Walker

Presented to Ottawa TMG Users Group

4 December 2021

> This presentation makes three assumptions: > Even if you collect some or all data with pen & paper, you will rely on a computer to collate your efforts > You will use genealogy software to produce a formatted document > You will produce a self-published printed book

Introduction

> In this presentation I will discuss the following topics: Solution Control Gathering information Creating a file using genealogy software, word processor, on-line web site creator Choosing a printing company for the printed book > Distributing your efforts

Introduction

- following places:
  - > Libraries
  - > Archives
  - > Genealogical Centres
  - > Visits with family members
  - > E-mail from family members and/or newly found cousins
  - > On-line from web sites such as Ancestry, Family Search, Scotlands People

Gathering Information

> Gathering your genealogy data will likely have been acquired from one or more of the

Compiling your newly acquired genealogy data will likely fall into one or more categories:

- key in the text into a computer.
- software. The latter helps maintain order.

Gathering Information

> Handwritten notes. This method is awkward and difficult to update in an orderly fashion. This procedure is fine as long as you will later

> Use of a computer with a text editor, word processor or genealogy

Creating a tree on-line at places such as Ancestry, Family Search

- Microsoft Word is acceptable.
- Word usually fails when it comes to handling graphics and images.
- service.

> Consider first if you will be creating a file that is only textual or with images. > If your file is to be textual only, then a standard word processor will work.

> If your file is to contain images, then a proper publishing tool is highly recommended. Microsoft Publisher is recommended, mainly because MS

> The end result will be a camera-ready file that you will send to a printing

> What do you wish to include in your journal report?
> The following suggestions are from TMG. You will have to apply these suggestions to your own genealogy software. The following slides illustrate the procedure used for a textual journal report.

Editing Your File

- specifically The Master Genealogist (TMG).
- > The example publication that will be shown today is in two parts. > The first is a textual journal report created by genealogy software,

Editing Your File

Regardless of what genealogy software you use there will always be required editing. One cannot rely on the software to get all of the punctuation as intended. There may be double periods, double commas, sentences beginning with a lower case letter.....

Others will tell the story of those who migrated to Canada for no other apparent reason than to seek a better life. In most cases the reason for leaving their native land was due to religious persecution or escaping the ravages of war. In some cases we can only make certain assumptions for leaving their native land.

he ships varied in size and purpose. One of the more famous was the Mayflower. Some famous ships included those that carried tens of thousands from New England and New York to flee persecution at the end of the American Revolution, the so-called Loyalist Fleet of 1783. Some ships have no real story to tell, other than to provide passage. Some arrived unceremoniously at their destination, while others wrecked, such as the Elizabeth on the north shore of Prince Edward Island.

of course, the Internet, have all been a considerable force in permitting me to pursue my genealogy and family history research. In the context of my efforts, genealogy is used to define the typical family tree with its basic tombstone data. Family history is an extension of genealogy, and includes the stories that make our ancestors come alive, putting flesh on the bones.

Dumfriesshire. Margaret was born 9 January 1764, in Annan. No official documents have been found to support this early data, only entries in Walker family bibles. The Walker syrname is known in the Burgh Court Records as far back as 1506. Perhaps one day we will succeed in making connections beyond 1762. There were thirteen children born to David and Margaret, all but the two youngest born in Cummertrees Parish, with the youngest born in Twathats, Ruthwell Parish. The entries shown at left were found in the Old Parish Register of baptisms for the Parish of Cummertrees<sup>1</sup>. These entries would have been late registrations, unlike individual records entered at the actual time of the event. Janet was entered twice, giving both birth and baptismal dates in the second record. Since these children were entered in chronological order, there is another John, born to different parents, then it continues with Susanna, born to David and Margaret. The entry below Susanna, for a Thomas was in error, hence the strike through that line. However, there was possibly a twin of Susanna, also named Thomas, who does not

> In Memory of MARGRET WALKER DIED July 30th 1826 Aged 5 years.

Daughter of JOHN AND JANE WALKER

It was not until tombstone restoration at North Bedeque Cemetery revealed the inscription on Margret's stone below "Died". It was previously thought from oral history that she died 1825, on board ship during the crossing from Scotland. John and Jane named their next daughter Margaret. If the dates on this tombstone and the John Walker family Bible are correct, the lives of Margret and Margaret overlapped, Margret having died July 30 1826, and Margaret born earlier, November 4, 1825. Margaret was baptised August 13, 1826, and later married Rev. Hugh Brown. Margret is a granddaughter of David & Margaret.

David Walker, Margaret Hetherington and Their Descendants From Dumfriesshire, Scotland to New Annan, Prince Edward Island, and Beyon

Generation One

1. DAVID1 WALKER. The father-son relationship between James Walker (c1732-1816), his wife 1. DAVID WALKEE. The Inter-son relationship between James watter (c1732-1810), his wire Starsh Hill (c1731-1814), and David Walker (1762-1844) is a proposal based on the age difference of 30 years, close proximity of their farms, and that James & David each paid a horse tax on the same date. The evidence is circumstantial, but compelling. James Walker and Sarah Hill are buried with his parents, John Walker (c1704-1739) and Mary Johnston (c1706-1771), in the Dattor Village Graveyard, Dumfriesshire, Scotland.<sup>12</sup>

There is a story about the origin of the surname Walker. "Wa(u)lking the Cloth", extracted from a Scottish list: "Walker' means "Walker of the Cloth". This was a transitional process from liquid to cloth, and workers walked it in their bare feet to stretch it. In the Highlands 'wauking' the tweed is a process of shrinking the cloth. A group (ausually women) would sit around a wooden table and the long length of damp tweed was held by them all. It was passed through their hands, and bumped down on the table as it was passed along. There were traditional songs sung to maintain the rhythm of the wauking.<sup>3</sup>
